USPA NEWS - On 12 December 2023, the French Auction House Pescheteau-Badin, with the Assistance of Expert Pierre-François Dayot, presented the Louis XV Writing Table created by Ebéniste Jean-Henri Riesener for the Petit Trianon in 1771, at Auction at Hôtel Drouot (Paris).

On 12 December 2023, the French Auction House Pescheteau-Badin, with the Assistance of Expert Pierre-François Dayot, presented the Louis XV Writing Table created by Ebéniste Jean-Henri Riesener for the Petit Trianon in 1771, at Auction at Hôtel Drouot (Paris).

Sold for €195,000 (including Buyer's Premium) by Auctioneer Brice Pescheteau-Badin to a French Bidder in the Room, the Writing Table was immediately pre-empted by the Centre des Monuments Nationaux for the Hôtel de la Marine. It will thus be returning to the Place de la Concorde where it was kept for Several Years, probably until the Time of the Sales held during the Revolution in 1793.

When Marie-Antoinette moved to the Petit Trianon, the "Coffee Room", where this Piece of Furniture was located, was remodelled and the Staircase and Wood Panelling removed. As Louis XV's Writing Table no longer fit in, it was sent to the Garde-Meuble de la Couronne (formerly the Hôtel de la Marine) in 1776. In 1788, Marc-Antoine Thierry de Ville d'Avray, Commissaire Général de la Maison du Roi, decided to reuse the Table for his Own Personal Use and asked the Great Cabinetmaker Guillaume Benneman to undertake its Restoration.

- On 12 December 2023 at Hôtel Drouot (Paris):

* Assistance of Expert Pierre-François Dayot

* The French Auction House Pescheteau-Badin sold the Louis XV Writing Table for €195,000 pre-empted by the Hôtel de la Marine

* Estimated at €150,000 to €200,000, this Table was a Privileged Witness to the Final Years of the King's Life spent in the Company of Madame du Barry at the Petit Trianon. Later, with the Transformations of the Petit Trianon demanded by Marie-Antoinette, this Piece of Furniture joined the Garde-Meuble de la Couronne, where it was restored in 1788 by Guillaume Benneman.

- Riesener and Benneman, Two of the Greatest Ebénistes of the Crown

Jean-Henri Riesener (1734-1806) was Ebéniste de la Couronne from 1774 to 1785. Renowned for the Excellence of his Furniture and the Refinement of his Marquetry, he was involved in the Completion of one of the most Beautiful Pieces of Furniture for the Crown, the Cylinder Desk for the Cabinet du Roi of Louis XV, begun by the other Great Ebéniste of the Reign of Louis XV, Jean-François Oeben. Guillaume Benneman (1750-1811) succeeded Jean-Henri Riesener from 1786 to 1792, and completed a Large Number of Commissions for the Royal Residences. When Marie-Antoinette moved into the Petit Trianon, the «Pièce Du Café» was redesigned; the Staircase and the Panelling removed. Louis XV's Writing Table no longer fitted in, and it was sent to the Garde-Meuble.

In 1788, Marc-Antoine Thierry de Ville d'Avray, Commissaire Général de la Maison du Roi, decided to recover the Table for his Own Personal Use. At the Time, the Price of Raw Materials outweighed that of the Cost of Labor. In the Interests of economizing, and following Standard Practice, Guillaume Benneman was charged with restoring the Table, that is to say, restoring it for its New Use. «The 18th Century restores, replaces and transforms. That is very much the Mindset of the Eighteenth Century,» concludes Pierre-François Dayot.
